Bleakley 'Names' Elting as 'Good' For U. S. Senate

G.O.P. Candidate for Governship in 1936 Suggests County Leader at Holland Society Meeting

Summer Fete

Philip Elting Would Have Society Arrange Celebration at Historic Spot

The recommendation of Judge William F. Bleakley that Philip Elting, leader of the Republican party in Ulster county, be one of the two candidates to be nominated for the office of United States Senator this fall, and Mr. Elting's suggestion that the Holland Society arrange a summer celebration on the site near the property of William E. Bruyn which is located on the Shawangunkill where the Dutch settlers of early Kingston recaptured the women and children from the Indians in 1665, were two of the highlights of the annual dinner of the Ulster County Branch of the Holland Society of New York held Saturday evening in the Hotel Stuyvesant.

As usual the annual dinner was one of the outstanding social events of the year, and the members and guests began to gather at the Stuyvesant shortly after 7 o'clock that evening to renew old friendships before sitting down together to dinner which was served at 8 o'clock in the big dining room of the hotel.

The following fine menu was served:

Chilled Fresh Fruit in Glass
Celery Hearts Stuffed Olives
Salted Nuts
Consomme Vermicelli
Hutspot
Roast Stuffed Duck, Apple Sauce
Potato Croquette New Green Peas
Hot Dinner Rolls
Tomato Surprise
Wiltwyck Sherbet Assorted Cakes
Edam Cheese, Crackers
Coffee
Mints

During the serving of the dinner the diners sang a number of old favorites including Sweet Adeline and the Good, Old Summer Time, with Edward Ward at the piano.

William E. Bruyn, vice president of the Ulster County Branch, presided as toastmaster, and said that since the last annual dinner the Ulster Branch had grown in numbers and several applications for membership were in hand.

President Meserole

Walter M. Meserole, president of the Holland Society of New York, was the first speaker of the evening, and spoke briefly of the work of the society, and said that its financial condition was much better than it was several years ago. The society expected to resume publication of the annual year book, he said, which had been suspended owing to lack of funds. He brought the greetings of the parent society to the Ulster Branch.

Consul General Talks

W. P. Montyn, Consul General of The Netherlands at New York, said he was glad to be present again as a guest of the Ulster Branch and he brought the greetings of his country to the society. He said that no longer could Holland be considered simply as a land of windmills, the wooden shoes and the tulips, but that to-

Supervised Play

Big Community Night at Hasbrouck Park on Saturday to Open Summer Series

The playground season in Kingston will open on Saturday evening, June 25, with a big Community Night program to be staged in Hasbrouck Park. This program will be similar to the closing program held last season in that park.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman will be present to officially open the playground season, and an elaborate program is being arranged for the evening in which all of the city parks will unite in this special program at the downtown park. Talking pictures will be shown for the first time in the city park, and there will be other entertainment.

The supervised play program will commence for a 10-weeks season on Monday morning, June 27.

Those who have been selected as playground instructors for this season will be present at the Community Night and be introduced to the audience.

Plans for an extensive and varied program of playground activities is being arranged.

New Gas Station Will Be Erected at Central Garage Site

H & R Oil Corp. Leases Property at Broadway and East St. James Street Owned by O. M. Kennedy

Vanderlyn Change

Battery Concern Will Move to Lewis Brown Building on Broadway

Work was commenced this morning demolishing the former Central Garage building at Broadway and East St. James street, owned by O. M. Kennedy, and on the site will be erected a modernistic gas station by the H. & R. Oil Corp., of this city, distributors of Gulf gas and oil products.

Thomas Kennedy & Son has the contract for razing the old structure and erecting the new station. The contract calls for completion of the job in 90 days.

H. & R. Has Lease

The site has been leased by the H. & R. Oil Corp. for a term of years with an option of purchase. At present the site is occupied by the Gulf gas station on the corner and adjacent to the station is the Vanderlyn Battery Company at 748 Broadway while the upper floor of the building has housed the Cashin School of Dancing.

Harry Hines, Sr., who bought out the interest of Jay Vanderlyn last November and has since been proprietor of the Vanderlyn Battery Co., dealers in automobile accessories, auto electrical work and general repairs, will move to the Lewis Brown building at 783 Broadway, where he will be located for business after July 1.

Razing in 30 Days

The contract with Thomas Kennedy & Son calls for the demolishing of the present structure within 30 days and the erection of a very modern station. George E. Lowe is architect.

Plans call for the erection of a modernistic stucco structure with complete service station, including a carwashing department, lubritorium and a complete gas, oil, tire and accessory station. The building will be set back from the curb against the present building just south of the garage structure with ample drive-in facilities on the corner of Broadway and East St. James street. The service section of the building will be one story high with an office structure facing the streets at the corner.

Decorative Tower

This section of the building will have a decorative two-story tower of attractive architectural lines. In the service section of the station will be three drive-in entrances with over-head doors.

The building will be heated with oil with the compressor and boiler room located in the basement. Off from the office will be a men's room and there will also be an up-to-date ladies' waiting room and tile rest room. In the ladies' room will be hot and cold water at all times with a lounge and powder room for the women folks, and comfortable lounge chairs.

Grade Erection.

At present the building on the site stands at a considerable elevation above the sidewalk. The new building will be erected at grade and the entire lot will be graded at street level and landscaped. All driveway entrances will be black-topped.

The present building of two-story construction facing Broadway with one-story addition for many years was used as a garage by O. M. Kennedy, who for over a quarter of a century, until he retired from business, held the local Reo agency. Prior to that his father was engaged in the carriage business. Before alterations were made and the entire lot covered by the present garage structure, there was for many years a lunch wagon standing at the corner of the two street. This was moved to make room for the present garage structure several years ago.

Quick Spending Promised

Heads of five government spending agencies pledged today a quick start on the administration's $3,753,000,000 relief and public works program.

Their detailed outlines for hundreds of bridges, sewers and roads, schools, airports, low-cost housing developments, dams, harbors and flood control units awaited only the President's signing of the bill, the Associated Press says.

In addition, the agriculture department studied disbursement of parity payments to farmers growing wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco and rice. Loans for farmers unable to get credit and subsistence grants for low-income farmers also are being arranged.

The five federal officials discussed their programs last night in a radio forum. Here is a summary of what they said:

Harry L. Hopkins, works administrator: The $1,325,000,000 paid to WPA workers will flow into trade channels in their living costs — $515,000,000 for food, $220,000,000 for rent, $150,000,000 for household expenses, and the rest for medical care, transportation and other items.

"The added business through purchase of materials alone will give indirect, full-time private jobs to 250,000 workers, entirely apart from those on WPA rolls."

Howard A. Gray, assistant administrator of public works: "It is our firm purpose  to employ all speed so that large orders for materials and supplies will be placed without delay and so that benefit becomes to private industry before the builders start construction."

Japanese Strike At Impediment; Insurgents Gain

Invasion Is Concentrated on Rock-laden Boats at Matowchen—U. S.-Anglo Gunboats Ready to Protect

Rebels Advancing

Gains Are Reported on Two Fronts in Spain's War—Cities Bombed

Shanghai, June 20 (AP)—Striking both from land and air, the Japanese today sought to blast out the barricade of rockladen boats at Matowchen which is blocking their drive up the Yangtze river to Hankow.

While Japanese planes continued to bombard the boom, an overland column forded the swollen Tsien river and marched into Hotow, threatenening a rear attack against Chinese forces guarding the barrier.

Another Japanese column, which captured Taihu yesterday, prepared to drive southward against Susung, 30 miles away, in an effort to reach Kiukiang, overland. Kiukiang is 135 miles by river below Hankow.

Gunboats Await Call

American and British gunboats are waiting at Kiukiang, prepared to protect property and evacuate neutrals if necessary.

Meanwhile, the Japanese river fleet, said by the Chinese to include 100 ships, continued to shell both shores above Anking, Anhwei province capital, and sweep the Yangtze for mines.

At Kaifeng in the Yellow river flood area, engineers expressed the belief that the present flood had reached its peak and said the breached dikes could be repaired before a second rise expected in July. They estimated at least 30,000 persons were drowned and missing as a result of the flood, while 100,000 had lost their homes.

Forces Withdrawing

Japanese forces, driven from the Chengchow sector by the high water, were reported withdrawing to the southeast to reinforce the armies in the Yangtze area.

Japanese advices from Nanking said the Yangtze was rising rapidly as a result of recent heavy rains and that one-third of Kiukiang was inundated. These reports said Hankow was confronted with danger of inundation should the waters continue to rise.

Reports from Hankow said General Lung Mo-Han, commander of the 83rd Chinese division, had been executed for failure to obey orders in the defense of Lanfeng, Lunghai railroad town where a bitter engagement took place after the fall of Soochow.

It also was reported that Japanese planes bombed Hainan Island, off the south China coast near French Indo-China, for the third successive day, damaging military barracks of the Chinese defenders. Japanese warships were said to have silenced Chinese guns in a duel with the fort at Holhow, Hainan Island port.

Strike Two Fronts

Hendaye, France (at the Spanish frontier), June 20 (AP)—Spanish insurgents today reported slight advances both on the eastern front and the Cordoba front in southern Spain.

On both fronts the insurgents were slowed down as they reached strong government positions.

Along the Mediterranean south of Castellon De la Plana government militiamen were making a strong stand in fortified positions in the low hills and between the Mijares and Seco rivers. The insurgent spearhead still was about 30 miles north of Valencia.

Government troops felt secure enough in their new positions to take the offensive in several sectors, notably before Villarreal where they reported the insurgents had fallen back slightly.

General Gonzalo Queipo De Llano, commander of the southern insurgent forces, reported an advance of nine miles along a tributary of the Zugar river on the border of Cordoba province.

Treasury Receipts.

Washington, June 20 (AP).—The position of the treasury on June 17: Receipts, $98,860,163.82; expenditures, $47,226,492.39; net balance, $2,357,026,558.43, including $1,772,519,654.93. Working balance; customs receipts for the month, $12,566,965.88. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1,) $5,968,861,852.71; expenditures, $7,438,010,225.84, including $2,073,010,265.10 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $1,469,148,373.13; gross debt, $37,194,301,915.86, a decrease of $93,432,665.20 below the previous day; gold assets, $12,951,923,203.20.

Attacks Plan

Jerusalem, June 20 (AP).—The British proposal to partition Palestine for establishment of independent Jewish and Arab states was attacked today by Professor Benjamin Akzin of the Portia Law School of Boston. Appearing at the first public hearing by a British commission studying the plan, the professor declared the Arab state would conquer the Jewish state at the first opportunity.

40 Persons Feared Dead Today When Crack Train Is Plunged Into Yellowstone by Washout

Graphically portrayed in this air view is the fate of the Milwaukee railroad's "Olympian" passenger train which June 19 plunged from a flood-weakened bridge 26 miles east of Miles City, Mont., killing 28 or more and injuring 65. Note passenger coach partly submerged in middle of Custer Creek; the wreckage of bridge which gave way completely; and the remaining approaches of the bridge on left and right banks of the stream.

Sixteen Bodies Recovered From Milwaukee Road's "Olympian" Yesterday and Today

20-Foot Flood

Seething Wall of Water Carries Bridge Away Almost at Movement Train Arrives

Miles City, Mont., June 20 (AP)—Custer Creek, into which the Milwaukee Railroad's "Olympian" carried nearly 40 persons to their death in the nation's worst train tragedy in years, resisted today the efforts of rescuers to reach one car still holding its dead.

Heavy silt flowing into a submerged tourist sleeper, in which 17 persons had booked space, forced Milwaukee officials to abandon attempts to raise it with cranes.

They said they feared the bottom of the water-logged sleeper might drop out, sending the bodies downstream.

Sixteen bodies, 11 of them identified, have been recovered from the wreckage. Another, that of an unidentified woman, was taken from the Yellowstone river, into which Custer Creek flows, about 50 miles from the scene of the tragedy.

Porters told of seeing as many as five or six bodies carried away by the 20-foot flood that rolled down the creek channel.

The flood waters, which had carried out a 180-foot bridge just before the fast, air-conditioned train arrived at the crossing early yesterday, continued to subside slowly today.

Rescuers Continue Work

Miles City, Mont., June 20 (AP)—Estimates of the dead and missing in the nation's worst railroad tragedy in years approximated 40 today as rescuers sought to remove additional bodies from the wreckage of the Milwaukee Railroad's crack "Olympian".

Seventeen bodies have been recovered. Railroad officials announced that a still-submerged tourist sleeper contained 17 bodies.

Survivors told of seeing as many as five or six bodies swept into the flood waters of Custer Creek, into which the train plunged yesterday.

A midnight "flash flood" had carried away the 180-foot trestle spanning Custer Creek 26 miles east of Miles City. Seven cars of the 12-car train followed the locomotive into 20 feet of rushing water. Only a few minutes before a track walker had reported the creek almost dry.

Forms Discernible

Witnesses said they could see the bodies of passengers still seated in the submerged sleeper, the forms made indistinct by the muddy water that filled the car. The sleeper's lights burned eerily through much of last night.

At Glendive, 80 miles northeast of Miles City, the sheriff's office said a woman's body had been taken from the Yellowstone River into which Custer Creek flows.

Of the 65 or more injured who were taken into Miles City in a hospital train yesterday, 30 remained in a hospital today, two of them critically injured. One unidentified man's back was broken.

Jamestown Named Convention City For State Grange

The annual meeting of the New York State Grange will not be held in Kingston. Word to that effect was received this morning by Mayor C. J. Heiselman from Secretary H. M. Stanley of the New York State Grange, who has written the mayor that the convention is to be held in Jamestown.

The secretary's letter to the mayor reads as follows: "Our executive committee has completed its trip of inspection of the five cities under consideration by us for our annual meeting. We have fully considered the facilities offered in each place and the conditions existing within our organization and have finally selected the city of Jamestown.

"We want you to know that Kingston and also Schenectady can furnish all necessary facilities for our convention. We would like to be able to meet in both of these splendid cities at some time.

"We were especially impressed with the interest of you and your citizens in our meeting and can assure you that no one could have done more in any way to show us that they really wanted us to hold our meeting with them than you folk did.

"We just cannot hold our meeting in more than one place and we trust that in time we may have the privilege of meeting in your splendid city."

The Mayor Replies.

Mayor Heiselman replying to Mr. Stanley's letter says:

June 20, 1938

Mr. H. M. Stanley,
Secretary, New York State Grange,
Skaneateles, New York.

Dear Mr. Stanley:

I acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 17th, and while we regret very much your decision to hold your annual meeting in a city other than Kingston, we can only congratulate the winning city on the splendid opportunity to entertain you which is now theirs.

I understand that Jamestown has been selected, not because it has convention facilities superior to ours, but because recent conventions have been held in central or eastern cities and it was desirable from the viewpoint of the entire Grange membership to transfer the meeting this year to a western city. I have attended a convention in Jamestown and can assure you that it is a community of splendid and hospitable people and I am sure you will enjoy your visit there.

We in Kingston would be disappointed beyond expression if we did not feel confident that your

Police Seeking Two Wallkill Convicts, Third Is Captured

Three prisoners from Wallkill Medium Security Prison were reported missing from the institution and an eight state alarm was sent out by police teletype.

Later one of the trio was located at Gardiner and returned to the institution but the other two were still at large.

Wigard Believed Armed

Robert Wigard, 20, described as six feet tall, weighing about 185 pounds, is supposed to be armed with a saw and knife and may give trouble if located. He has dark brown hair and a mole on his left hand.

Andrew Anderson, 26, five feet eleven, weighing 147 pounds, is tall and slim with blond hair parted in the middle. Both men wore white shirts when last seen.

Picked Up at Gardiner

The third member of the trio was Thomas Blaszak, 20, who was picked up in Gardiner.

In the message broadcast it was reported that the men probably would solicit a ride or might attempt to steal a car. It was believed the men left along Route 32 toward Kingston. Wigard comes from Syracuse. Blaszak was committed from Orleans county.

All State Troopers and police officials have been warned to keep a lookout for the men. The men escaped from the prison grounds at 8 o'clock last night.

All three had served approximately one year of five to 10 year sentences. Blaszak and Wigard were convicted of car thefts and Anderson of forgery.

Labor Support Is Challenged

At Albany claims of labor support for a Democratic proposal to curb wire-tapping and property seizures were challenged today as Constitutional Convention Republicans completed a hoped-for compromise of the controversial issue, The Associated Press reports.

The compromise will be embodied in an amendment which Republican Chairman Harry E. Lewis of the bill of rights committee said he would pin to the "committee" proposal that now would write the federal constitutional provision into the state document.

The amendment, he explained, conforms with the suggestion of Manhattan Republican Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey, and would add a provision that wire-tapping be permitted only under a court order or warrant "based on oath or affirmation."

Lewis said he would offer the amendment tonight as debate opens on the proposal.

Democrats, particularly State Senator John J. Dunnigan, were expected to oppose the compromise because of its failure to prohibit court use of evidence illegally obtained.

Dunnigan is sponsor of the one other amendment reported by the committee last week in its surprise reversal of previous action killing several "search and seizure" measures.

His proposal, introduced for the State Federation of Labor and strongly advocated by its president, George Meany, not only would ban property confiscation and wire tapping without legal warrants, but would invalidate the use of evidence thus secured.

Meantime, Republican Delegate George F. McNaughton, Rochester, former union official, urged adoption of an amendment in line with Dewey's suggestion and discounted labor support claimed for the Dunnigan measure.

May Get Big Job

Bernard A. Culloton in Line for Post of Chief Assistant of State Liquor Board

Bernard A. Culloton, former city judge and chairman of the Democratic party in Ulster county, is in line for an appointment as chief assistant executive officer of the New York State Liquor Authority, a position which pays an annual salary of $5,000.

Asked this morning as to possibility of an appointment to the post, Judge Culloton said he had not been notified of such appointment.

Should the appointment come to the Kingston attorney he will succeed Edward J. Strodel, who has been named chief counsel to the Authority in place of John B. Judson, who recently resigned.

Judge Culloton has twice served the city of Kingston as city judge and for several years has served as chairman of the Ulster County Democratic party. Judge Culloton is a graduate Law School and for several seasons was very prominent in local and national baseball circles.

Air View of Montana Train Wreck

This general aerial view depicts the scene of the worst American railway tragedy in recent years—26 miles east of Miles City, Mont., where on Sunday the Milwaukee railroad's crack "Olympian" plunged from a flood-undermined bridge into Custer Creek. At right are cars of the train which did not make the plunge. In the flood-swollen stream are several units of the train—one almost entirely submerged. Note how bridge has been swept away completely.

40 Feared Dead In Train Wreck came to claim their dead, stories of tragedy and of heroism were told by the survivors.

Ten-year-old Anne Ladas, whose mother was dead and whose father was missing, related how she tried desperately to keep her mother's head above the swirling water.

When the mother, Mrs. Thomas Ladas, fainted from shock, the small girl grabbed her hair and held her head above water for several minutes.

Anne's brother, nine-year-old George, suffered a broken arm. Unable to comprehend the tragedy, he kept crying, "I want my mamma and daddy."

"But you haven't any mamma and daddy any more," the boy's sister tried bravely to explain. The family was enroute home to Bellingham, Wash., from a visit to Greece.

Porter Called Hero

A negro porter on the train, Lew Williams, was credited by survivors with possibly saving several lives by calmly directing passengers out of his car.

One of the cars teetered on the creek bank several minutes before it slid into the water with the others.

Seven Milwaukee railroad employes, who knew Custer Creek as a ravine that usually carried no more than "a bucket of water," were riding the Olympian as passengers. They joined regular trainmen in helping out the survivors, and two of them telephoned first news of the tragedy to Miles City.

Mike Cain and Ed Hamm, brakemen, crawled over the twisted pile of steel cars, made their way to Saugus, a small station, and telephoned for help.

Engineer's Version

William Shearer, veteran Milwaukee engineer, said the railroad men were "chewing the fat" in the first day coach when the crash occurred.

"I thought we were just on the ground at first," Shearer said. "Then I realized we were in water, and I said 'Boys, we're in the old Yellowstone.'

"It was a few minutes before I found out it was Custer creek. Why, I've put a train over these tracks thousands of times, and I never saw more than a bucket of water in that creek at once," Shearer said.

"Well, we all crawled out of our coach. It was hard to see much. The mail, express and baggage cars, which were between us and the locomotive, were piled up every which way.

"We crawled along the pile like monkeys, wondering how anyone could be alive.

Help Is Called.

We all crawled back over the wreckage again—I knew the boys in the engine must be dead. We saw a woman jump out of a window she smashed. She floated down against the pile of wreckage and I think she must have drowned.

"Her husband yelled for us to help her, but it was no use.

"The other men in our group—there were Henry Shipley, fireman; Chauncey Tarbox, conductor; Jerry Clifford, engineer; and John Unhoefer, retired conductor—were all "deadheading" it to their homes in Miles City.

"They helped the people get out of the cars, but it was bad going," Shearer said.

"One of the Best."

Shearer said Frank Merrifield, engineer of the train, was "one of the best men that ever handled a locomotive."

The locomotive leaped the bridge gap with such speed that it landed on the west bank of the creek, carrying Engineer Merrifield and Fireman H. E. McCoy with it.

Ellis Lund and Thomas Thoreson of Dawson, Minn., together helped "15 to 20" persons from another car.

"It was like a dream. I hardly know how I got out," Lund said later. He and Thoreson were in the smoking car, one end of which was crushed between two coaches in the creek bed.

"The first I knew it was as if we were going through air," Thoreson related.

"Then there was a terrible bump. I didn't know what happened. The water started pouring in. People in the other part of the car screamed and fought to get out," Thoreson said.

Two wreckers sent to the scene were unable last night to drag out the submerged tourist sleeper because of the depth of the flood water.

Most of the survivors and some of the less seriously injured continued westward yesterday on trains leaving Miles City.

Adequate Facilities

The Holy Rosary Hospital at Miles City, to which the injured were taken, is an 85-bed hospital and doctors reported adequate facilities for caring for the victims. Approximately half the 65 brought in on the hospital train were released after emergency treatment.

The wreck was the first on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Lines in 20 years that cost a passenger's death.

H. R. Kester, advertising manager of the Miles City, Mont., Star, said the cloudburst that swept away the steel and concrete bridge was of "unprecedented proportions."

Kester went to the scene by airplane as soon as he heard the first report of the tragedy early yesterday.

Every Possible Hazard

"Viewed from the air it was as though some great force had sent about to scramble effectively the train and create every possible hazard for its load of humanity, and at the same time select a spot where aid was almost entirely impossible," Kester said.

"Custer Creek empties into the Yellowstone River from the north about 30 miles east of Miles City, and the accident was near its mouth along the Yellowstone River bottoms and next to High Cly Cliffs and foothills."

"The only means of access to the stricken train was by way of the railroad tracks from Miles City or by country road over a circuitous route through the foothills and across flooded upland coulees to the water-sogged meadows at the mouth of Custer Creek."

Because of the relatively flat straightaway of the tracks east of here, it was believed the train was traveling full steam ahead when it struck the gap left by the washed out bridge.

Work Progresses On Route 28 Over New Alignment

Laying of concrete on the new alignment on Rout 28 at Stony Hollow is progressing rapidly and the Lane Construction Company, contractors, will shortly have the job completed. At present the roadway through the woods on the new alignment is not open to traffic although considerable of the pavement is in. The old road is still being used.

On the lower end of the contract four lanes of cement are in and being used with the exception of the short section along the Esopus creek at the John Walker form where a section along the creek remain to be completed. This section will not be completed until it is determined what is to be done to prevent the roadway from settling. A bad footing for the fill causes the roadway to slide out each year and engineers are studying the problem.

This section is Ulster county's first stretch of four lane "safety type" of state construction which is being advocated as superior to the former three lane type of construction which was used on many of the trunk highways in the past.

4 Cases Before City Judge Today

There were four cases brought to the attention of Judge Mino in police court this morning. Julius Rudolph, Jr., of the Boulevard, to oblige a friend drove an auto to the railroad station Sunday and was arrested on a charge of driving a car with license plates issued for another car. When Judge Mino heard the facts he imposed a fine of $5 but suspended the payment of the fine.

James F. Murphy, who has no home, was picked up for loitering about Academy Park. He said he had a job waiting as a sandwich man, carrying a sign on the street. He was told if the job was still open he could accept it, but if not he was given until noon to get out of town.

Bleakley 'Names' Elting for Senate

day its cities were modern and up to date. He extended a cordial invitation to all who could to visit The Netherlands. He called attention to the new ocean liner that was recently launched and placed in commission which had been entirely built by his countrymen.

Judge Bleakley Speaks.

Judge Bleakley, who was present at the invitation of Philip Elting, told several humorous stories before plunging into his address. He said that we owe much to the Hollanders who were the early settlers of New York city and the Hudson valley, and where they settled they remained. It is the very solidarity of the Dutch that was needed in these troublous times. We have a depression, he said, but as yet the fundamentals of our country had not been changed. We still have a Congress to make laws, a Supreme Court to pass upon their legality and a president to see that the laws are enforced. As long as we retain these fundamentals and fight off successful the attacks that are being made on these fundamentals these days just so long will our country remain and we will get back where we belong.

Judge Bleakley said he did not believe in catering to any group merely because that group may have political influence to aid us. We want men at the head of our government who will enforce the Constitution and who are grounded in American principles and ideals We do not want and will not have the discord of the Old World imported here. What this country needs was a little old time American conservatism.

Then the judge paid a tribute to the work accomplished by Philip Elting as one of the political leaders of the state, and as a man who had the best interests of our country at heart. He said that Mr Elting had worked hard for the country without thought of honor and suggested that Mr. Elting be one of the two candidates for United States Senator to be elected this fall.

Heiselman Talks.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman said that he was glad to be present as the guest of the society, since he wished to pay tribuate to the early settlers of Kingston who had left their imprint on the history of the city. The influence of these early Dutch settlers was still evident in the city in which many of their descendants still lived and took an active part in the life of Kingston He closed with asking all present to drink with him a toast to the new princess of The Netherlands.

Elting's Suggestion.

Philip Elting recalled that on June 7, 1665, the stockade around the early Dutch settlement of what is now a part of Kingston and some of the houses within the stockade were burned by the Indians who captured a number of the women and children and killed and scalped many of the men.

Following the massacre a rescue party of the settlers pursued the band of Indians and overtook them on the site near the property of the toastmaster. Mr. Elting said one of his ancestors was among the women rescued from the Indians.

He believed it would be a good idea if the society arranged to hold a summer celebration on the site where the women and children were recovered from the Indians.

One of the principles of the Dutch settlers was self reliance and they believed in self support. These principles were greatly needed in this country today.

Bruyn Welcomed Idea.

Mr. Bruyn at the close of Mr. Elting's talk said that he thought the suggestion of a celebration on the site of the old Indian fort near his home was a good one and should be taken under consideration by the Ulster Branch.

The Hon. Henry E. Ackerson, Jr., a trustee of the Holland Society, spoke briefly, and congratulated the Ulster Branch on its activities.

November 17, is the date fixed for the annual dinner of the Holland Society to be held in New York city.

Elsworth Honored.

Kingston: "Yellow Jack," the story of an army sergeant, John O'Hara (Robert Montgomery), who offers his life to help science find the cause of yellow fever in Cuba, and wins himself a wife, Frances Blake (Virginia Bruce). In the supporting case are such outstanding cinema names as Lewis Stone, Henry Hull, Buddy Ebsen, Andy Devine, Charles Coburn and Henry O'Neil and Preview of "This Marriage Business."

Broadway: One of the season's timeliest motion pictures, packed with tensely dramatic action, is "Blockade," Walter Wanger's production with Madeleine Carroll and Henry Fonda in the starring roles. The baackground of the picture is the Spanish civil war, though the theme is the romance of Miss Carroll and Fonda, both caught in the seething maelstrom of the conflict. Although the picture preserves a neutral attitude, the story loses none of its exciting quality. In the supporting cast are John Halliday, Reginald Denny, Vladimir Sokoloff, Robert Warwick and Katherine DeMille.

Orpheum: Double features—"Spirit of Youth," starring Joe Louis,, heavyweight champion of the world, and "Missing Witness" with John Litel and Jean Dall.

Tomorrow

Kingston: Two features—"This Marriage Business," with Allan Lake and Vicki Lester, and "Mystery House," starring Dick Purcell and Ann Sheridan, in a story of how a murderer betrays himself under pressure.

Broadway: Same and a preview of "Kidnaped" adapted from the story by Robert Louis Stevenson. Warner Baxter and Freddie Bartholomew are the stars.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JUNE 20, 1938.

WHAT OF WAGES AND HOURS?

The safest thing that can be said, perhaps, with regard to the wages and hours law, is that the spirit of the times seems to call for such experimentation. For it is frankly an experiment, and no one can say now how it will work out. Long discussion has made the public familiar with the idea of a floor for wages and a ceiling for hours, but not with the methods by which such desirable goals may be won. The need of reconciling many different groups and viewpoints in this measure makes it an obvious compromise. The result is a uniform law for the whole country, more moderate than many critics expected, and certainly easier to administer, than one trying immediately to fit pay and hours carefully to the many local standards now existing. If the experiment survives, a harmonious national system should develop in time.

The waning of effective opposition toward the end, on the part of business groups and competing areas, suggests a grudging willingness on the part of opponents to give the plan a trial. It also suggests a general feeling that this regulation of industry and business engaged in interstate commerce will bring neither the millennium nor the world's end. There seems to be a feeling that the "floor" of 25 cents an hour the first year will not be very revolutionary, and that 30 cents an hour the second year can probably be endured. Beyond that, nobody can say. A 35-cent or 40-cent basic wage may be far off. Wages and hours can be changed as it is found wise.

The clause abolishing child labor invites a legal fight, but the odds seem in favor of the Supreme Court finding it constitutional. There will doubtless be a tendency, as the new industrial rules are applied and extended, to eliminate inefficient plants and workers and increase mechanization. In various ways social gains may involve some social losses. Prices will adapt themselves, being the most flexible factor in the new situation.

We shall all know more about it a year or two from now.

EATING EDITORIALS

Editors sometimes have to eat their own words, but it is probably news when they make some one else eat them. That is what happened in Dallas, Texas, recently when two men in a neighboring town had a friendly political argument. The druggist, a thorough-going Democrat, complained that the editor of the Dallas Journal never approved anything the Roosevelt administration did. An admirer of the editor took issue with the statement. The druggist rashly said, "Show me one Journal editorial approving an Administration act, and I'll eat it."

The friend wrote the editor requesting "some nice clean editorials" that would meet the qualification. A dozen or so were immediately clipped. A city chemist discouraged eating the editorials raw, but promised to prepare them for internal consumption. It was a laboratory job. After the editorials had been reduced to cellulose, then to dextrin and glucose, then to a clear, sweet liquid which was finally reduced to a syrup, the result was turned over to the Journal's lunch room manager, who used it as the sweetening agent in a cake. The cake, eight columns wide by 21 inches deep, was decorated to resemble the Journal's editorial page. The cake was eaten, the druggist taking the first bite, at a merry dinner party. All things considered, the druggist got off easy. But what a fine end to a political argument!

SPELL A FILIPINO

We shall have to do something about the spelling of our oriental islands and their people. We're always getting into trouble about it. A recent "break" in Denver was especially awkward, because it was on bronze. When the local Council of Foreign Wars unveiled a tablet in the state house, some good spellers remarked with horror that, in a reference to the "Army of the Philippines," the islands were spelled with a double l and a single p. And with so many spelling bees, too!

It is easy to make such mistakes because of the confusion caused by our adoption, for English use, of the French spelling for a Spanish name. With the French, we write "Philippines" for the islands and "Philippine" as an adjective. But in referring to the people, we use the Spanish spelling, "Filipino". The natives call their islands "Islas Filipinas," a feminine form. There seems to be a tendency lately, as shown by our high commissioner to the islands, to use the Spanish masculine form "Filipino" as an adjective, as in "Filipino problem" and "Filipino people". That seems awkward to anyone who knows Spanish, but helps us to mind our p's and l's.

UNLIMITED HELIUM

A German scientist says that research has proved it possible to extract 99 per cent pure helium from the atmosphere. At what cost and in what amounts, he does not say. That the cost would be prohibitive, for the present at least, is suggested by his further statement that the United States will remain for some time the chief source of helium.

Some day, he believes, equally rich helium deposits will be found in Europe or other parts of the world. When that time comes the American monopoly will end. In the meanwhile, this country's policy is to keep its helium secure from any possible misuse for war purposes simply by not selling it to the only government that wants it. It retards the development of dirigible transportation, but is doubtless wise.

MUCH HEART DISEASE CAN BE PREVENTED

Some one quite naturally asks the question, "As heart disease stands first, after the age of 35 as a cause of death, why should there not be a campaign to prevent heart disease as there is for cancer, tuberculosis, diabetes, and the diseases of childhood?"

"Men, who form the major portion of the wage earners are hardest hit by heart disease. Perhaps, one out of every five men dies of heart disease."

Can anything be done to prevent heart disease?

Louis Faugeres Bishop, Jr., in Hygia, says that 75 per cent of the cases of heart disease are due to three ailments (a) hardening of the arteries—40 per cent, (b) rheumatism—25 per cent, and (c) syphilis—10 per cent. The other twenty-five per cent of cases are due to being born with heart disease, infections, nerves, and too much or too little thyroid juice.

That is, with the knowledge that three of four cases of heart disease are caused by conditions or ailments that can to a great extent be prevented, there is thus something that can be done to prevent heart disease.

How can hardening of the arteries be prevented?

"Prevention of the hardening of the arteries type of heart disease lies in slowing our pace, taking care of the waist line (many overweight people have heart disease and high blood pressure), and also the waste line, keeping intestinal track oiled and controlling the diet. Take regular exercise and if you have pressure in the chest on exertion or exercise, take less exercise or do less work." That is, live safely.

In regard to rheumatism, have teeth and tonsils examined and try to prevent other infections.

"Syphilis heart disease is 100 per cent preventable. Neglect in the beginning may mean heart disease twenty years later."

If the heart is too rapid or too slow, due to too much or too little thyroid juice, the removal of the thyroid gland or giving thyroid extract will cause the heart to beat at the normal rate.

Prevention of nervous heart disease means planning a quiet life with calmness of spirit.

I believe the above suggestions point to one logical conclusion and that is that just as we have our car or home kept in order, that we see our physician and dentist regularly. We should also learn as we grow older to try to live "safely", that is within our strength.

OCTAGON HOUSE

BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR

The Story So Far: Asey Mayo, Cape Cod detective, is investigating the murder of Marina Lorne, whose husband's post office mural has enraged Quanomet. She was killed by a left handed blow from the knife of her sister, Pam Frye. Interested parties are: Tim Carr, once married to Marina; Roddy Strutt, whose alibying plane crash was deliberate; Peggy Boone, an artist; Jennings, an irate plumber; and persons unknown who burned down the Frye's barn, biffed Asey, Tim and Pam's father, and destroyed Jack Lorne's mural sketches. Missing is a $50,000 lump of ambergris belonging to Pam which several people must have seen on the beach from Roddy's plane. Asey gets into the post office on Sunday for another look at the mural.

Chapter 39

Agreement All Around

"THE miscreants!" Elliott said. "The miscreants! This is an outrage. This is—why, there's not a single inch of that mural or of the side panels left! Not an inch that isn't covered by that red paint! It's—Jonah, don't you think that this is an outrage?"

Jonah, the dour post master, looked carefully at the Congressman and then at the red smeared walls before replying.

"Well," he said cautiously, "yes, an' no. Yes, an' no, if you ask me. It's a crime to hurt gov'ment prop'ty. They hadn't ought to of touched gov'ment prop'ty. But I tell you, it seems awful good to be able to look around the inside of this place without blinkin' an' wincin'. Red lead, ain't it, Asey?"

Asey nodded. Red lead seemed to be playing quite a part in this case.

"Put on," Jonah continued, thrusting out an exploratory forefinger, "put on around the middle of last night, I'd say. Kind of a neat job. They didn't spill much paint, an' they didn't do any tramplin' around in what they did spill, either. No, sir, this wasn't no mad job. This was delib'rate."

"I am profoundly shocked," Elliott said. "Profoundly. I'm at a loss."

His voice was entirely serious, and so was his face, and both were impressing Jonah enormously. But it seemed to Asey that underneath his seriousness, Elliott was considerably pleased, and considerably relieved. It had solved his problems, anyway.

"I s'pose the picture's ruined?" Jonah asked hopefully.

Elliott looked inquiringly at Asey.

"I guess so," Asey said. "I don't think you'll be able to do much reclaimin', an' it'll cost a pretty penny—"

"Asey," Elliott said, "you have hit the nail squarely on the head. Any sort of reclamation would necessarily be a most expensive job, a burden on the taxpayers, already burdened—and so on. And after all, you can't expect the government to pour more money down the sewer—I mean, down the pipe."

"You don't figger there's any chance that they might, do you?" Jonah asked.

"I would not like to go on record," Elliott cleared his throat, "but I think I may safely say that—I'm speaking for myself, you understand. This is not an official statement. It should not be construed as such."

Jonah nodded. "I see."

"But I think I may safely say," Elliott went on, "that the chances of this work of—er—art, this work of art being reclaimed or renovated are—well, they're remote. Jonah. They're remote."

He spoke with such relish that for a moment Asey wondered if Elliott might possibly have lost his key on purpose.

"That's fine," Jonah said. "I don't mind tellin' you, I sort of wanted to paint the thing out, myself."

"Off record," Elliott said heartily, "me too, Jonah."

'A Silly Story'

"SAY!" Jonah, who had walked over to the front door, beckoned to them. "Say, looky here, in the inside of the lock here. Looky! This gold key. This—"

"In the door?" Elliott asked unhappily.

"Right smack in the front door—it's unlocked, an' this key's sittin' here on the inside. Say—well, what do you know about that, this's your key, Elliott!"

"Impossible," Elliott said with prompt firmness. "Absolutely impossible. I don't believe it!"

"Well, it's got your name on the tag," Jonah said. "L. P. Elliott. That's you, ain't it? Say," his dour face lighted up. "Say, you oughtn't of forgotten this, El. You'd ought to of been more careful—"

"Jonah, you don't think that I—" Jonah winked elaborately.

"But, man alive, I had nothing to do with this! If that is my key, it was stolen. As a matter of fact, I knew it had been stolen. A man came out of my hedge—" Elliott stopped in confusion.

"It is," Asey said sympathetically, "kind of a silly story, ain't it?"

"But it's true! Jonah, you've got to believe me—"

"I won't say a word," Jonah said. "Not a word. Here, take it. Now, you know what I think? We came in the back way, an' no one seen us. But if they did, we can fix that up. I think we better get along—"

"What?" Elliott said. "Justice—"

"I know," Jonah returned. "But there still might be time for someone to salvage that damn painting, for all we know, but if we wait till tomorrow—when it's good an' dry—"

"We can't do any such thing!"

"Come on, El," Jonah said. "Let's let it get found tomorrow, just to be on the safe side. I'll find it myself, when I come over early tomorrow for the up mail. If anything's said about your bein' here this evenin', why, you just come out back with me to get a valuable doc'ment that got mailed by mistake. We didn't even come in this part of the buildin' at all. Come on, now. We don't want to be in here too long—hurry!"

He shepherded them out, despite Elliott's voluble protests.

"Now see here," Elliott said as they paused on the rear steps, "see here, Jonah, I did not have a thing to do with that! I give you my word of honor that I did not—"

"Go long," Jonah said. "I was your sergeant in France, remember. I know how straight a face you can lie with!"

"But I didn't!"

"Listen," Jonah inserted a finger in Elliott's vest buttonhole. "Listen, this'll get Quanomet and the towns around all so roused up in your favor—why, a hundred per cent! Just you consider the next election all over an' done with, El. We thought you was shilly-shallyin', not wantin' to get involved with Strutt's uncle in Washington that chose Lorne's picture. They been callin' you a fake, an' a straddler. But this'll save you, this will. An' don't think anyone'll ever let on, or give you away. You won't get involved a mite. I'll see to that, if Asey don't. We'll—what's the word, Asey?"

No Wild Geese

"ALIBI, I think," Asey said in a strained voice.

"That's it! If it should happen that you get mixed up, why, we'll alibi you. We'll lay it all to the tourists in that mess last night," Jonah patted Elliott on the shoulder. "Now, you get along, El. I'm goin' to be late for evenin' services, as 'tis. An' don't you give this a thought—we all wanted to do it ourselves, an' we'll show you how we appreciate your doin' it for us. We know now that you got our wishes right to heart!"

Elliott gazed blankly after Jonah as he got into his car and went off. Asey, having restrained himself as long as any human being could, laughed until the tears streamed down his cheeks in rivulets.

"Whee," Asey said at last, "I'm exhausted. I'm all wore out. Oh, golly, I think this is the funniest thing that's happened to you yet about this edifice, Elliott. I think—say, you didn't do it, did you?"

"What?" Elliott yelled at the top of his voice. "What? Listen to me!"

After ten minutes, Asey stopped him.

"I didn't really think so," he said. "Honest, I didn't. Look, I got to get over to see Roddy Strutt. I'm ashamed of myself for not havin' been there hours ago. Are you comin' with me?"

"Well," Elliott said with resignation, "I've apparently got the native vote, solid. Maybe I don't need the Strutts. Who knows? Sure, I'll come along, but if you find me being political, please don't take it seriously. If Roddy Strutt actually is involved in this, I'll do everything in my power to help you get the worm. Only, it's just possible that I may have to pretend otherwise."

"I understand," Asey said. "Let's get on."

He stopped by the telephone exchange to talk with Hanson, who hailed him wildly from the sidewalk.

"I ain't got time," Asey said, drawing Hanson aside, "to go into a lot of details, but this's what I want you to do. I want you to check up on Elliott—"

"Him? The Congressman?"

"Lower your voice, an' don't point," Asey said. "I mean him, the Congressman. Check up on him from when the post office closed last night till this afternoon. Got that? And for the love of heaven, don't let him or anyone else suspect that you're doin' any checkin', either. Then you phone your boss in Boston, an' tell him that I want him to get from the newspapers the best pictures he can find of the mural. The best pictures, of all of it, and I want 'em enlarged so's I can see all the details. Got that?"

"But you can go over to the post office, an' see it for yourself," Hanson said.

Asey drew a long breath. "Will you do what I tell you, or—listen, do I usually ask you to chase wild geese? Well, then! You get after them two items, pronto, an' I'll see you later."

Egypt Will Get Modern Benefits

Cairo (AP).—Youthful King Farouk is sponsoring a $70,000,000 plan to give each of his 16,000,000 subjects some of the benefits of the western civilization he likes so well.

When Farouk opened parliament he announced a 10-year program of social reforms for the fellaheen, or peasants, who form 80 per cent of the population.

The Egyptian government realizes a higher standard of living will increase production and give the country more money to pay its bills.

Western civilization has made long strides in Egypt in the last half century. Tourists who come to Cairo are often amazed at the broad, clean streets of the European quarter, with its streams of automobiles and its nine-story apartment houses.

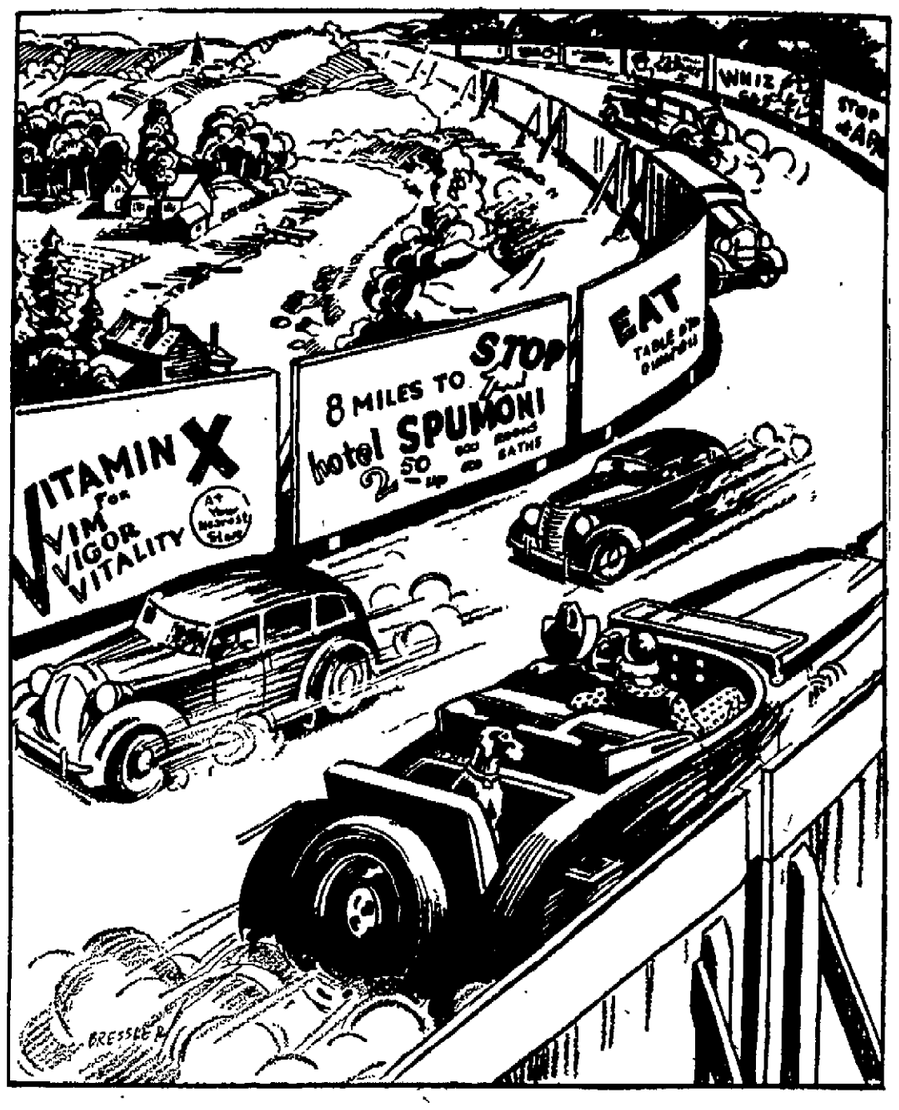

Many Egyptians wear western clothes, topped by the scarlet tarboush. But 10 miles from the city the fellaheen, whose ancestors built the pyramids, still live in low huts of brown Nile mud, with roughly thatched straw roofs, their mode of life little changed from that of their ancestors.

Beaucaire's Bulls Pose

Paris (AP)—Three of the healthiest, huskiest and toughest fighting bulls from the southeastern French town of Beaucaire arrived here ready to chase Parisian bullfighters around a ring, only to find that their only job was to look beautiful. Beaucaire decided to erect a statue to the fighting bulls that made it famous, so the three were sent to the Paris zoo while the sculptor, Emile Courcier, modeled them from the opposite side of the fence.

NEW YORK—Investigation into the entertainment program for the summer months brings to light many interesting angles. The theatrical season is at low ebb and will offer little, with the exception of a few straggling openings, until frost. The roof gardens are opening, and the nightclubs (some of them at least) are holding their breath, undecided whether to close for the hot months. The trade in the next two weeks will definitely decide which will go and which will remain. I look for at least three well known clubs to call it a season and wait for October.

But there is plenty of entertainment on tap for New Yorkers and those who live in adjacent territories. The fishing positively is the best in many seasons, all metropolitan waters offering fine possibilities, even to wharf fishermen, who go after eels and carp. At least 50 boats with hardened old salts as captains are available for those who take pleasure in deep sea angling. . . . The fluke, blues, bass are prime favorites, and the expense of an outing, which includes everything from food to tackle, is nominal.

THEN there are the Hudson river show boats which ply up to Bear Mountain and back after dark each evening, with music and dancing but no drinking with the exception of red soda pop and ice water. They have floor shows, if you aren't bored with floor shows, which happens to be the case with a lot of people after a long winter and a longer, dismal spring, sitting at tables around postage-stamp floors.

For the more serious students of play there are some fine lecture programs and open air symphonies, plus the revivals of operettas and musicals at the great open air arena on Long Island. One may hear Sinclair Lewis talk; one may follow the national league catfight between the Giants and the Cubs, plus the American league shindig with the Yankees at the Stadium. Baseball is a major item here for five months each year, as the attendance records prove.

THERE are pleasant tours to historic centers at such small cost that one wonders how it is managed; there are the Dutch gardens on Long Island and the skating at the open air rinks, and fiestas in the sidewalk cafes.

It is an interesting fact that New York has a number of free "colleges" of the Romance Languages . . . Spanish, French, Italian are taught without fee, and anyone may enter who has the inclination.

Farm and Home Properties Are Sold to City Buyers

John P. Schmid and wife, of Brooklyn, recently purchased the 12-acre truck garden and fruit farm of Stephania Peterson at St. Remy. The farm overlooks the Rondout creek.

Katherine Rusch bought 43 acres at New Paltz, bordering the Springtown road for 1,300 feet. Development in acre plots is planned. This property was conveyed by the Hudson Counties Estates, Inc.

The farm and residence, known as the Norvil C. Dunham cottage, was conveyed to Honorah P. Norton of Merrick, L. I.

Several acres of pine grove were purchased by the Hudson Counties Estates, Inc., from Katherine Rusch of Rosendale. Some was conveyed by contract to Alfred LaTronica, who plans improvements.

All transactions were made by the Mann-Gross agency, of 277 Fair street, this city.

Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—It would be easy to read far too much into the Iowa primary results in drawing a parallel between that state and other states, such as Kentucky, for instance.

To a great degree the primary situations in Iowa and Kentucky are parallel, but there are enough differences to make observers careful about writing down the value of administration support.

In Kentucky, Senator Alben W. Barkley, majority leader, is opposed for renomination by Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler. Barkley has the national administration with him. The President left no doubt of that when he sent a letter of endorsement to a Barkley dinner earlier in the spring. Moreover, he has shown his favor toward "Dear Alben" in other instances.

Enter The Machine

THE big parallel to be drawn between Kentucky and Iowa is in the value of the state machine. In Iowa, Rep. Otha Wearin had at least some administration support in seeking the Senate nomination against Senator Gillette. But back of Gillette was the stout Iowa state machine of Governor Kraschel. With it Gillette won handily.

In Kentucky, Governor Chandler has the state machine. Reputedly it is a daisy. While the national administration has been building up its prestige by means of public works, Governor Chandler has strengthened his own organization in the same way.

Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, and Jimmy Roosevelt spoke kind words about Wearin in Iowa to give him a semblance of administration endorsement that Gillette lacked. A good many persons thought the gesture was designed to give Wearin the benefit of some 35,000 or more WPA votes in Iowa, but it was not enough.

Without discounting the value of Chandler's state organization, it might be recalled that once Congress is adjourned the prestige of White House pronouncements increases. And the White House is for Barkley.

Light In Kentucky

NEVERTHELESS the experience of the unfortunate Wearin in being knocked down by the Iowa state organization is illuminating. It throws increased light upon the insistence of Senator Barkley in seeing to it that nothing in the new relief appropriation interferes with his taking full advantage of the administration's control of WPA.

He denounced an amendment to the relief bill which would have kept WPA officials from participating in politics. Although he mentioned no names, he said such a ruling would permit a state organization to run rampant in support of a candidate (such as Chandler), while the support upon which a senator might depend would be silenced.

Sundown Stories

By Mary Graham Bonner

Lamb At School

"YOU'RE up bright and early," cackled Top Notch, the rooster, as Sweet Face, the lamb, went by the General Store.

"Baa, baa, yes," bleated Sweet Face. "I have important work to do. Or rather I am going to save others from work."

"Dear rooster me," cackled Top Notch, "I don't quite understand what you mean, but I suppose that you do."

"Yes, yes," bleated Sweet Face. "I am not very clear because I don't quite know what it is I am going to do, or how I am going to manage it. But I must be on my way, thinking my plans as I go."

Top Notch was somewhat puzzled by Sweet Face's manner. If it had been Christopher Columbus Crow who had behaved in such a fashion Top Notch would have thought the crow was up to some mischief. With Sweet Face it was different.

Sweet Face hurried along, and Top Notch remained behind to be ready for any bird customers who might come to his Store for worms or seeds

It was quite a distance to the school house where Sweet Face was going and he had to hurry. He wanted to be sure that no one would see him. Even though one of the children had said that there had been a poem written at some time or other about a lamb who had gone to school Sweet Face felt that the job he had on hand would not make him welcome.

Of course the children would be glad. He was quite sure of that. He hid in some long grass back of the school house. He saw a janitor unlock the doors, brush out the room and then walk down the road.

"This is splendid," thought Sweet Face. "I'll have the school house to myself. It is just as I wished."

Tomorrow—"Busy Sweet Face."

Sacred Cactus Used by Indians in Celebrating

Certain varieties of cacti prefer the exposed mountain tops, and it is there only that they are found in profusion. One, the Epitholantha, blooms early in the spring, before the rainy season, so that its minute supply of pollen will not be spoiled by moisture. The flower shrivels and disappears entirely, but under the thick mat of spines the fruity seed pod develops, writes Curtis Redfern in the New York World-Telegram.

When ripe these pods again come into view, burst open and scatter their seeds to the wind. Or hungry birds, attracted by its brilliant red color come along and help to broadcast them.

Echinocereus stramineus follows a different method of protecting its seed until they are fully ripe. Until the fruit is ripe the pod itself develops innumerable wicked spines. This armor protects the seeds until they are fully ripe. Then, having served their purpose, the spines drop off at the slightest touch. This species, called the desert strawberry, is greatly prized by the natives as well as the birds.

There is a species called the sacred mushroom, or mescal button, that grows in northwestern Mexico. Each year medicine men of Indian tribes in Oklahoma make the pilgrimage to Mexico for their year's supply of this species. Arriving, the medicine man in full tribal regalia offers prayers to the Great Spirit and with much ceremony the plants are harvested, cut up and dried. Later at their tribal festivals they are eaten and produce a highly narcotic effect, accompanied by pleasant hallucinations. These are believed by the Indians to be messages from the happy hunting grounds.

States Limit Gasoline Brought in Foreign Cars

Washington. — Eighteen states have limited the amount of gasoline which may be brought inside their borders without payment of additional taxes, according to a survey made by the federation of tax administrators.

The restrictions are designed to prevent motor vehicles from using highways without contributing to the cost of maintenance and construction.

Thirteen states have specific gallon limits—ranging from 10 gallons in Colorado to 50 in Iowa—while five states admit tax-free only the fuel that can be carried in a vehicle's ordinary fuel tank.

States which restrict the number of gallons of gasoline which can be brought across their borders without payment of additional fuel taxes are Iowa, 50 gallons; Idaho, Illinois, Kansas, Wisconsin and Washington, 20; Texas, New Jersey and Louisiana, 30; New Mexico and Nevada, 25; Indiana, 15; and Colorado, 10.

States which forbid importation of gasoline—without payment of additional taxes—in excess of that carried in ordinary fuel tanks: Arizona, Arkansas, Maine, New York and Oregon.

Honolulu Bird Talks to Self in Two Languages

Honolulu.—Mrs. S. Itakoa boasts of possessing the only bird on the island that can talk in two languages. It is equally fluent in Japanese and English and can throw in a few words of "pidgin" when listeners are not able to understand the two languages in their purity.

The bird, which answers to the name of Charlie, is a nymah, one of the most conspicuous birds on the island although not indigenous here. They were brought from India to aid farmers by feeding on the cut-worms of a moth.

Unlike most talking birds, the nymahs are able to talk without having their tongues slit.

It took Charlie nine years to arrive at his present linguistic achievements and his greatest and most amusing accomplishment is that of being able to carry on a bi-lingual conversation with himself.

Sights And Sounds
By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Jetta Goudal, who was once described in a court suit by her then employer Cecil B. DeMille as a "cocktail of emotions," won the legal right to be "temperamental" as a result of that battle. The court held that an actress's "temperament" was part of her equipment.

It was a fine victory, although by coincidence Jetta never worked importantly again. She has been happily married for some years now to Harold Grieve, prominent interior decorator, and she works with her husband at his profession.

Not long ago one of her former studio associates, with whom she had tangled more than once, encountered her and was greeted most pleasantly. Jetta's friendly remarks, as reported by him: "It is so much fun not being in pictures any more. I can enjoy life and—just think!—I don't have to be mean about anything!"

It's An Old Story

It would be interesting to trace the rise of the school of stellar thought that holds a star, to be successful, must be "difficult." It certainly ante-dated Jetta Goudal, for some of Hollywood's best temperament tales reached circulation in the period from 1915 to 1920 when stars were first feeling their oats.

The director, Josef von Sternberg, was a disciple, if not the high priest, of the theory.

"I've just made five new enemies," he once chuckled, confidentially, to some cronies.

It was Pola Negri's own idea, apparently, as she came before Joe. Her battles with Gloria Swanson became Hollywood legend. Pola's campaign, as she admitted privately when pressed, was logical. "There are many girls in Hollywood prettier than Negri—so Negri must be different!"

But Marlene Dietrich, who can be as sweet as pie when she wants to be, undoubtedly took instruction direct from her mentor, von Sternberg.

That director set her off beautifully at a studio luncheon presenting her to the assembled press. "Miss Dietrich," he remarked in effect, "is not only beautiful but is far more intelligent than anyone here present."

Just Reputation

Miss Dietrich's popularity or lack of it with many members of the correspondent corps, especially the feminine contingent, may be said to date from that moment, but in subsequent years she has shown herself to be an apt pupil. Marlay-nah's not mean—she just has the reputation of being "difficult," which probably is truly part of "glamour."

Stresses Environment

Albany, N. Y., June 20 (AP)—Dr. Frank P. Graves, State Education Commissioner, called today for "suitable environment and training" as an aid to "raising the level of racial achievement." In an address prepared for the annual commencement of the New York State College for Teachers here, Dr. Graves asserted that the "only effective way of developing leaders * * * is in education."

Sees Building Gain

Albany, N. Y., June 20 (AP)—New York state's construction industry is on the upswing, State Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews has announced. Andrews reported an increase of 10.7 per cent in employment and 8.8 per cent in payrolls during May. Weekly earnings, he added, showed a slight decrease over the preceding month.

Four Killed

Albany, N. Y., June 20 (AP)—Four persons lost their lives in upstate accidents over the weekend. Two were drowning victims while the others were killed in automobile accidents.

Circus Goes

Syracuse, N. Y., June 20 (AP)—Its labor controversy still undecided, employes of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus prepared for its regular shows today and tomorrow. Tuesday, union officials said, the circus will move on to Scranton, Pa., for a conference with the management on a prospective 25 per cent. pay cut. Meantime John Ringling North, the show's president, said he "assumed" employes had accepted the pay cut because they continued to work after the deadline for disbanding the show was reached. A union official, however, denied the cut had been accepted.

Fees Show Decrease

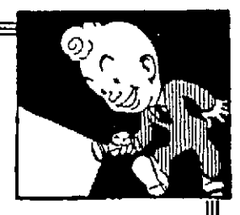

Albany, N. Y., June 20 (AP)—A decrease of $150,259 in fees collected in April, as compared with the same month a year ago, was reported today by the State Motor Vehicle Bureau. Motor Vehicle Commissioner Charles A. Hartnett placed the April, 1938, collections at $2,182,126.46. Despite the decrease, he said, total fees taken during the first quarter aggregated $40,207,405.06, a gain of $871,484 over the same period last year.

Opens Restaurant

Victor B. Rogers and Mary A. Rogers of Box 416, R. D. 1, Kingston, have filed a certificate with the County Clerk stating that they are doing a restaurant business at that address under the style of Pine Grove Inn.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Two-Fisted "Samaritans"

Indianapolis — Two "Good Samaritans" rushed John Casey to the city hospital for treatment of a cut lip he said he suffered as an unidentified man slugged him on a downtown street.

About an hour later Casey returned with a broken nose and another bruised jaw. This time he said the Samaritans who assisted him to the hospital had slugged and robbed him of a billfold and a diamond ring, then threw him out of the automobile.

Horses Get "Tickets"

Beckley, W. Va.—Do horses come under the parking meter law?

Prosecutor W. T. Thornhill, Jr., and his assistant, W. H. McGinnis, Jr., claimed they don't and said they wouldn't pay "parking fines" for their two steeds.

The lawyers left their horses on a street while they went to the court house and didn't put any nickels in the meters.

A policeman handed the horses a couple of tickets.

Came the Dawn

Bountiful, Utah—Mrs. Orson Bangerter opened one eye, peered out and told her husband, "It's daylight. Get up."

Bangerter arose. But instead of daylight, he discovered the back porch was on fire. He estimated the damage at $1,200.

Solution in Numbers!

Racine, Wis.—Chief of Police Grover C. Lutter has proposed that small children be outfitted with "license plates."

"Numbered tags corresponding with a name and address index which would be kept at the police station," he explained, "could be worn around their necks when they go out to play. We could return lost children much more quickly by merely checking their 'license' numbers."

The first Ethiopian kingdom was founded in the 11th century B. C.

California Woman Voted Before Law of Suffrage

Lodi, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Arthur Scott claims to be the first woman to vote for a President of the United States. She explains:

When Wyoming became a state in 1890, women retained the suffrage granted in territorial days. Mrs. Scott's husband, an election officer, opened the polls for the 1890 election two hours ahead of schedule to accommodate a friend who was leaving on a business trip. Mrs. Scott voted then, for Benjamin Harrison.

15 Glass Vases Puzzle Experts

Paris (AP).—Workers in a stone quarry near Nancy found fifteen glass vases. Paris experts, couldn't tell why they were all of the same peculiarly curved design or who made them. Other explorations at the site disclosed the remains of a medieval village, but the experts say the vases antedate the town.

Anthrax Follows Rains

Sacramento, Calif. (AP).—A wet winter which has left much standing water in the lowlands has been followed by an increase in anthrax among cattle, the state division of animal husbandry reports. Stockmen have been advised to vaccinate their animals.

Official figures show 1,002,591 bicycles registered in Tokyo, or one to a family.

Unless Business Gets a Long "Breathing Spell" Pretty Soon, It Will Be Needing An Oxygen Tent.

The bride of a few weeks noticed that her husband was depressed:

Bride—Ernest, dear, I know there is something troubling you, and I want you to tell me what it is; your worries are not your worries now, they are our worries.

Husband—Oh, very well then, we've just had a letter from a girl and she's suing us for breach of promise.

READ IT OR NOT—Robert Fulton, inventor of the first practical steamboat, worked first as a jeweler.

Rastus (at lodge meeting)—Brotha President! We needs a cuspidor.

President of the 8-Ball Club—Ah appoints Brotha Brown as cuspidor.

Cultivate The Smile

Put the hammer in the locker;
hide the sounding board likewise;
Anyone can be a knocker, anyone can criticize.
Cultivate the manner winning, though it hurts your face to smile
And seems awkward in the beginning, be a booster for a while.
Let the blacksmith do the pounding; that's the way he draws the pay.
You don't get a cent for hounding saint and sinner, night and day.
Just for solid satisfaction drop a kind word in the slot,
And I'll warrant you'll get action on your efforts on the spot.

Sunday School Teacher—All those who would like to go to heaven, please raise their hands.

All did, except one.

Sunday School Teacher—Why, Junior, wouldn't you like to go to heaven?

Junior—No, not if that bunch are going!

The after dinner speaker
That I like to hear, by Heck,
Is the one who calls the waiter
And says, "Let me have the check."

Hiram—Yes, I've seen a few bad crop years in my time too. One year our string beans were so poor that the crop didn't even pay for the string.

Silas—That's nothing, Hiram. In 1914 our corn crop was so bad that my old dad, who had a very poor appetite, ate up 14 acres of corn at a single meal.

The lifeblood of the community flows through the medium of the local newspaper. The businessman, large or small, needs the newspaper. The newspaper needs the businessman. For the greater prosperity of both their interests are interlocking.

Scotch Customer—A spur, please.

Saddler—You want a pair of spurs?

Scotch Customer—Why? If I make one half of the horse go, the other must go with it.

Lady of the House (suspiciously)—Mary, did you wash this fish carefully before you baked it?

Mary — Heavens, ma'am! What's the use of washing a fish that's lived all his life in the water?

One man puts his money under his pillow every night so that he can have enough to retire on.

Security Markets Down Last Week

Although all stock averages showed a very slight gain Saturday in a market limited to a total of 106,530 shares, there was a general decline in security markets last week. Industrials showed a net loss for the week of about $1 a share, as figured in the Dow-Jones averages, rails lost 0.80 point and utilities 0.50. Volume of trading was consistently light, however, and no great amount of liquidation was indicated. Grain markets were somewhat lower than closing prices of the previous week. Cotton had a net advance for the week of around $1.35 a bale.

Business conditions showed some slight signs that might be taken as an indication that the future—the more or less immediate future, at least—holds some promise. Steel production was up a bit, motor output showed some increase, carloadings made a better than seasonal gain and there was some activity in the markets for woolen and cotton goods. There are signs that inventories are being lowered and that in some consumers goods lines an actual shortage may materialize.

As the 75th Congress came to an end there was not seen any important change in the attitude toward each other of the controlling political leaders and conservative industrialists and financiers. One commentator puts it thus:

"The sum and substance of the winter season's political developments is that 'Government' and 'Business' are about as far from anything like 'cooperation' as they have ever been. Therefore, private enterprise will be compelled to carry on as best it may under much the same Washington influences as have prevailed the past four or five years—unless the minor but developing cleavages within the dominant party carry a portent of results at the November polls."

A Commerce Department survey shows that direct investments by American corporations and business men in foreign enterprises and properties totaled $6,691,000,000 at the end of 1936. This is about ten per cent less than holdings at the end of 1929. Of the total $1,936,000,000 were direct investments in Canada.

Commissioner Healey of the SEC says that the Utility Act of 1935 does not mean the nationalization of the utility industry, nor its death sentence.

Some Virginia textile mills are reported to be stepping up operations. They have been running on a two-day week.

Net earnings of the Wayne Pump Co, for the first half of this year, it is estimated will be around $1.73 a share, close to the amount earned in the first half of 1936. In the first half of last year the company earned $2.85 a share.

There were only 88 vessels in the ore trade on the Great Lakes on June 15, compared with 312 a year ago. Ore stocks on hand are at a record high, with consumption at a low point.

New York, June 20 (AP)—A rejuvenated stock market awakened from a long sleep today and posted gains for industrial leaders running to 4 or more points.

It was the best rallying performance in nearly six weeks and virtually all categories participated to some extent. Volume expanded on the upturn, but the ticker tape had no difficulty in keeping pace with orders. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 1,000,000 shares.

Profit taking frequently was in evidence, but this was absorbed comparatively easily and prices were around best levels near the final hour.

Business and industrial news was brighter in spots and, with government pump-priming expected to get going speedily, considerable short covering was reported in addition to buying by those who have about reached the conclusion the lengthy gloomy spell is nearing an end.

Secondary yrail bonds and other corporate loans took their cue from stocks and went forward briskly. Major commodities also swung upward. Foreign securities markets edged higher.

Steels, motors, coppers, rubbers, mail orders, farm implements, aircrafts, oils and specialties were in the forefront of the move. Carriers and utilities scored lesser advances.

'Handle' For Firecrackers Keeps Bang, Prevents Burns

Buddy And His Gadget

By The CP Feature Service

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Six-year-old Buddy Hunnicutt can shoot all the fireworks he wants to now without getting burned or having his fingers blown off.

Buddy always has liked firecrackers but was a little afraid of them. So he rigged up a tin can with a handle to shoot them off in.

That gave his father, Warren P. Hunnicutt, an idea. With the help of a local inventor he constructed a gadget which he believes will take a lot of burns and scars out of Fourth of July celebrations.

The fireworks projectile he developed from his son's idea is a metal shield with a handle on one side and a tube and touch on the other to hold firecrackers or roman candles.

"It eliminates a lot of danger but none of the fun," Hunnicutt says.

Writer Believes in "Dates" at Any Age

Fort Worth, Texas.—Dr. Henry Neumann, writer, believes the modern miss should have dates just as soon as she pleases.

More harm than good, he said, follows the old-time fashion of keeping the daughters at home until they are eighteen years old —then allowing them to have "dates" for the first time.

Youth today is morally better than a century ago, he believes.

St. Ursula Exercises Held Sunday at 4 P.M.

The closing exercises of the elementary departments and kindergarten of the Academy of St. Ursula took place Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the auditorium of Marygrove before an audience of parents and friends. Following the program awards of merit for scholarship in various branches were made by the Rev. Benjamin Roth, acting in the absence of Monsignor Stanley and addressing the graduates and those present.

The opening curtain showed the graduates with their bouquets against a background of lightly strewn vines and pink roses. A beautiful statue of Our Lady and Child dominated the scene from a high central niche. Graceful baskets of blooms were placed here and there completing a scene of youth and beauty.

The program opened with a chorus rendered by the Grammar classes, "Sing Little Bird" by Ehrmann, and was followed by a dance which figured Wee Maidens of the Kindergarten and First grades. The charm of these tots in their long white gowns and blue ribbons took the house.

This was followed by a French song by the small children, "Le Peureux," and this by one in English, "Forget-me-not," by the Primary Grades. Following this was a pretty "Lullaby" by Boyd, showing the little ones of the grammar grades, each with dolls in their arms.

The Misses Jane Anne Forst and Cynthia Van Gonsic then executed very well a piano duet, "The Dancers" by Greenwald.

The following number was unique. The curtain opened showing the little boys and girls of the Kindergarten and first grade, each with a musical instrument. With surprising trueness of rhythm and tempo, they accompanied the piano themes, "Frese Jacques" and "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star."

The grammar grades followed with a French chorus, "Les Chasseresses" by Brodese. The fourth, fifth and seventh grades enacted two most interesting recitations in French.

This was followed by a colorful folk dance in characteristic costume. Miss Amelia Altamari rendered next, with exquisite skill and a touch quite extraordinary for one of her age a piano solo, "Au Rouet" by Godard.

The seventh and eighth grades interpreted with feeling and expression Susan Wilson's the "Painter of Seville" and a closing chorus was sung by the school.

TO WIN AND HOLD LOVE WATCH THE LITTLE THINGS

Do You Recognize the Danger Signals?

No good-by kiss? An air of indifference? These are signs of Ned's waning interest. No wonder Beth is worried. What can she do to recapture his ardor? What to do to avoid heartbreak?

Look in your mirror, Beth. Why should Ned even want to look at you when you appear at breakfast, looking like Topsy with your hair in curlers—and your face bright with a cold-cream polish?

"That's not the girl I married," Ned broods. Not being a nagger he lets it go at that.

But men don't wear blinders. Away from home they see well-groomed women. They compare! And that last-minute glimpse of Beth in spotty gown and run-down shoes doesn't give her any the best of the comparison. If she loses Ned she'll have only herself to blame.

And how many engagements are broken because of careless manners? Men like to feel important. When alone with your beau don't let him down with the feeble excuse, "Since it's ONLY you and I." Be romance personified. Keep your feminine allure.

Don't hurt his vanity One young girl we knew couldn't resist publicly teasing her beau about his bald spot. She's still a spinster, we hear!

Perhaps you wonder if affection helps to hold a man or bores him. Men value the affection they win—not the kind that's poured over them. They're still the hunters in love.

In our 40-page booklet, SUCCESS IN LOVE AND MARRIAGE, a well-known psychologist explains the laws of attraction, ways to win love and hold it How to tell when a man is in earnest, secrets of a happy marriage.

"I saw a beautiful apartment today, Herman—but it didn't have an electric sign outside!"

Hurons Wallop Rosetons 14-5, Neff Signs With Montreal Club

The Huron Indians chalked up a 14-5 victory over the Roseton A. C. of Newburgh, Sunday afternoon at Stone Ridge, collecting 16 hits off two pitchers, J. Vadjie and Hutlock, while Charlie Neff and C. LaPolt held the visiting batsmen to six bingles.

Stone Ridge celebrated not only its victory yesterday, but also rejoiced over Charlie Neff's good fortune in baseball. The Pride of the Ridge went to Jersey City after the game and signed with Montreal. He'll join the club within the next two weeks.

The Rosetons turned in two runs in the third as T. Kisk was safe on an error. Polish went out, Neff to Cragan on first and Vigh struck out. S. Tooth got on by virtue of a passed ball, Chum was safe on Regan's error and two runs were the result. Slogan struck out.

In their half of the third, the Hurons came in with one run. Purvis singled, Muller was safe on an error, F. Neff fanned, C. Neff went out to first and Purvis crossed the platter on the putout.

In the fourth the Hurons really staged a big war dance, collecting eight runs, three of which came in on Muller's double.

C. Neff and Cragan scored two more for the Indians in the sixth and the seventh saw Muller, P. Rask and Purvis cross home plate with three more for the Red Men.

The Roseton nine collected three runs in the eighth to make its total five.

Poughkeepsie Player Wins

Strong Bronx Giants Defeat Saugerties on Sunday 9 to 4

Playing one of the strongest ball clubs ever to appear in Saugerties, the M. & F. Tavern team went down to a 9-4 defeat at Cauline's Memorial Field yesterday to the Bronx Giants.

Playing heads up baseball throughout the game, the metropolitan club had little trouble with the villagers. Although losing, the Saugerties club gave the home town fans something to talk about by bringing such a classy outfit to Memorial Field. The Bronx Giants on Saturday toppled the Poughkeepsie State Hospital team 10-4.

The metropolitan club drew first blood netting two runs in the third inning, although garnering only one hit. After Doyle had grounded out, Garland and Shea walked. Paterini then singled in Garland from second, moving Shea to third. A long fly by Murphy, which Pavlak gathered in center field, scored Shea.

At the start of the fourth inning Howie Fluhr developed a streak of wildness and after issuing three walks was replaced by Charley Butykins, who quelled the rally by getting Paterini on a fly to Pavlak.

The Bronx representatives really "went to town" in the fifth, scoring three times on Murphy's single, Putzer's walk, Weiner's double and Doyle's single.

The M. & F. team finally broke into the scoring column in its share of the fifth when Freligh singled, went to third on Knauert's double and both scoring on Desmond's single to left field.

Once again the visitors shower their hitting ability in the sixth when Shea drove a terrific drive into left field for a home run.

The Saugerties boys scored also in the sixth when Fluhr drove a tremendous triple to left field and scored on Sweet's fly to left.

The New York club finally drove Charley Butykins to the showers in the seventh when Dunn's walk, Putzer's single, Weiner's walk and a single by Doyle scored three more runs and brought Orville Sweet to the mound for the M. & F. team.

The Tavern's last tally came in the seventh also when Brink singled, stole second and scored on Desmond's looping single to center field.

From the seventh inning on both teams were held scoreless as Doyle and Sweet proceeded to bear down and silence the hitting of both teams.

Briefs.

Although Howie Fluhr struck out seven men in four innings he seemed to lack control, passing eight before he was replaced by Butykins. Incidentally, big Howie gave only one hit while on the mound.

A sore arm prevented "Lefty" Martin from getting the starting assignment. Seems as if "Lefty" has been troubled ever since the dust storm at the Kingston Athletic field recently at a twilight game he was twirling.

"Shad" Freligh kept his word in getting two hits as he predicted at the start.

Bill Finger seems to be a trifle upset with his batting average but in the field Bill is "the tops."

More teams like the Bronx Giants and a little more patronage would give Saugerties a boost in baseball circles.

Babe Ruth Is Glad to be Back

By DREW MIDDLETON

New York, June 20 (AP)—Three years ago, in the twilight of his career, the players were used to him. But yesterday at Ebbets Field the Dodgers stared at Babe Ruth, their new coach, with their eyes popping.

He looked just as he always had, heavy, sweaty and hearty. He was glad to be back as a coach, a step, and not such a long one, from the managership of the Dodgers, and he showed it in everything he did.

"Gosh," said the Babe, "it sure is good to get back. But I'm not in shape"—he slapped his mammoth tummy—"stood up there and bit for five minutes and felt like I'd been doin' it all week."

The packed citizenry of Brooklyn was calling on him to "go up and bust one." You could tell that the players, who stood around like kids at a circus, would like to see him hit again. But the Babe shook his head.

"I'm just a coach now, not a player. Hurt my arm up there, too. Besides I Can't hit any more. My right eye's bad. Started to go bad last year I was with the Yankees. I dunno why, it just did.

"I guess this is a good a way as any to come back. I can start here. This isn't a bad club, couple of pitchers and they'd be right up there."

The rumor runs the Babe is slated for the Dodgers' managership within a month, or at best by the end of the season. You told him and he laughed that deep, belly laugh.

"Naw, that's crazy stuff. I'm just a coach. Burleigh Grimes is the manager. Sure, I'd like to be a manager, here or anywhere else, but I guess I gotta wait for a while.

When it was all over, when the Dodgers had won, 6-2, and lost, 4-3.

As Tony Lazzeri of the Cubs, said as he ducked into the shower, "it's good to have that fat old bum back, now ain't it?"

Beatrice Barrett Happy Over Title

Colorado Springs, June 20 (AP)—Elated that she finally has won her first major golf title, Beatrice Barrett of Minneapolis talked today about renewing her Minnesota rivalry next week with freckled Patty Berg, also of Minneapolis.

Miss Barrett beat Helen Hofmann of Salt Lake City 6 and 4 in the finals of the western open at Broadmoor Saturday.

Roosas Win 18th

The Roosa All Stars defeated the Barmann Flashes last Saturday, 10-1, behind the pitching of Johnny Quigley. It was the 18th win for the Roosas.

Kyanize Win

The Kyanize baseball team defeated the Rosendale team on the village diamond, Sunday, 7-3.

Mike Weiner and Jean Wiren Star For Kingston in Schenectady Meet

Each scoring 11 points, the Kingston A. C. track and field team, and that of the Albany Sports Club, entered by Ben M. Becker, coach at Schuyler High School, wound up in a tie for third place, Saturday, in the General Electric meet at Schenectady.

Booker T. Washington team of Albany won the meet with a total of 18 points, and in second place was the Schenectady Sports Association with 17.

Starring for the Kingston A. C., sponsored by the same group that holds boxing bouts at the municipal auditorium, were Mike Weiner, of this city, and Jean Wiren, of Rifton. Weiner took first in the 220 yard dash and was third in the 100. His time for the 220 was 22.9. Mike was second in the broad jump, leaping 20 feet, 10 inches, right behind the winner, J. Constantine, of Albany, who made 21 feet, two inches.

In the 440-yard race, Jean Wiren ran the fastest of his career, but came in second to J. Marshall, of Albany, whose time was 50.4.

Don Clark and Tommy Maines were fourth in the high jump and javelin throw respectively.

Schmeling Needs Second—
So Does Joe Louis

By Joe Kelly

There are no indications that the boxing commission will lift its ban on Joe Jacobs....So Max Schmeling will need another second to work with Max Machon and Doc Casey....And, the Louis camp is looking for a man to work with Black and Blackbourne.... Reports that Julian Black and John Roxborough, managers of the champ, had split, have been denied....If every seat in the Yankee Stadium is sold, Wednesday, the big fight will gross a million and a half....The glove controversy is expected to end up with the champ using a brand made in Chicago, and Schmeling a New York product.

It ought to cheer up Burgess Whitehead to learn that so far Bill Terry has tried out an Italian, a Pole, an Irishman and a Greek at second without finding anyone to fill Whitey's shoes....Owner W. O. Briggs bought every Detroit Tiger a $125 suit for scoring 17 runs in two innings to trim the Senators the other day....Ty Cobb, a celebrity in his own right always did and still does refer to Connie Mack as Mr. Mack....Harry (the Hoss) Danning, of the Giants, will get a movie bit if the Giants repeat....Reports are that Gabby Hartnett is the No. 1 guy on Larry Mac Phail's list if Burleigh Grimes' contract isn't renewed.

One story is that Boily Grimes has one month to land a new job before the Babe takes over the Dodgers' managership, says Sid Feder of the AP. . . . Seems about every club but the Tenth Avenue Alley Cats had a chance to land Johnny Vander Meer. . . . Bill Terry was practically begged to invest $2,500 in the kid back in '35. . . . The Dodgers fumbled their chance (leave it to the Dodgers). . . . The Red Sox wouldn't kick in 25 G's. . . . But the payoff is the Bees had to take him from Scranton to realize something on a $2,500 investment. . . . And then shipped him to Nashville without so much as a look. . . . And, reports Chick Feldman of the Scranton Tribune, the guy who "exiled" him was Wily Will McKechnie, who's now his boss at Cincinnati. . . . Incidentally, Johnny's pa credits Johnny Gooch, Pirates' coach, with teaching the kid the tricks of the trade at Durham two years ago. . . . But don't overlook Lefty Grove's fine Scandinavian hand in ironing out the kinks in his control last spring.

FIGHTS THAT MADE HISTORY

Joe Louis, Beat by Schmeling, Blasted Braddock For Title

This is the last in a series of articles reviewing fights for the heavyweight championship.

Louis Knocks Out Braddock: 1937

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Feature Service Writer

Joe Louis, a negro whose terrific punching produced a long string of quick knockouts and made him one of the sensations of boxing history, blasted James J. Braddock senseless to win the championship in June, 1937.

Only three years out of the amateur ranks, Louis blazed a fast trail to the title. So easily did he remove his foes with devastating blows that a legend of invincibility was built around him. Here was a super-fighter and many of his opponents were frightened into defeat before they stepped into the ring. He bowled over two former champions, Primo Carnera and Max Baer but lost to another, Max Schmeling before he beat Braddock.

The champion, a former New Jersey dock-hand with a game Irish heart and a fair punch of his own, had no fear, moved out to trade wallops with the Brown Bomber and had Louis on the floor in the first round. And 55,000 in the Chicago White Sox ball-yard voiced the only cheer they had cause to give Jim during the fight.

The slow, comparatively aged Braddock, ring rusty after two years of idleness, was no match for the faster negro who carried such power in both fists.

Braddock floored Louis with a short right uppercut and Joe landed on all fours. The negro was up without a count and unloosed a savage assault. For seven rounds he pummelled Braddock, drawing blood from his mouth and nose, cutting him badly. But he couldn't drop Jim. Braddock was weary and puffing like a winded dog but there was still dynamite in his right, ready to be shot when an opening was presented.

Then in the eighth Louis stabbed Braddock three times with flipping, cutting left and, as the champion moved his guard, the negro shot across a right to the chin. Braddock fell flat to the canvas and never stirred or moved a muscle as he was counted out.

Louis' all-conquering march was halted a year before he beat Braddock when Schmeling knocked him out in 12 rounds. Louis got the title shot when Braddock sidestepped Schmeling's challenge.

But the Schmeling defeat hangs like a shadow over Joe's right to hold the title. So Joe and Max meet again in New York, June 22, with the championship at stake.

Wilbur Scores Over Boiceville In Sunday Afternoon Game 5-3

The Wilbur Dodgers won their first road game at Boiceville Sunday, scoring over the home club by 5-3.

Spot Cullen, on the Boiceville mound, pitched good ball, but five errors on the part of his supporters in five innings made him leave the mound.

Bud Zoller, taking up where Cullen left off, held the Dodgers to no hits in the last four innings.

Kayo Cullen, brother of Spot, did the twirling for the Dodgers and struck out seven batsmen. He was touched for the same number of hits.

Wilbur having scored one run in the first and second, Babe Schumacher swung the willow for a double in the fourth, driving home Charlie Schick and Wes Hyatt to win the game.

Next Sunday the Wilbur Dodgers will go to Lanesville for a game with the Chichester club.

The Way Kingston Pilots Finished

In the motorboat races at Saugerties Sunday, four Kingston drivers fared as follows: Francis Carter had motor trouble in the outboard race and Johnny Heiser dropped out of competition after one lap because of what he considered an unfair start.

Don Schryver took third and Chick Miller fourth in the inboard race. There will be another program of races in two weeks.

Tickets Selling Rapidly for the Fight Wednesday

New York, June 20 (AP)—The golden rain continues to pour down on the box office, Mike Jacobs becomes hoarser by the hour as he croaks "plenty of tickets left," and the long-awaited return fight between Max Schmeling and Joe Louis for the heavyweight title is only three nights away.

Louis, the 24-year-old negro champion, still declares he will bat Schmeling's brains out in "not more than two rounds" as he does a final bit of loafing around his training camp at Pompton Lakes before motoring in for the weighin Wednesday noon.

Schmeling, the same maddeningly confident German who interrupted Joe's sensational career with a 12th round knockout two summers ago, winds up his preparation with four leisurely rounds of boxing at his high camp in Speculator.

Things otherwise are reaching a focus. Fifteen thousand "ringside" seats are being knocked together at the Yankee Stadium, and the fistic experts, gathered here to represent newspapers over most of the civilized world, are beginning to look drawn and haggard as the time in which they can "guess right" grows shorter.

The odds on Louis to retain his title still are running 8 to 5 and better, and indications are that this is going to be one of the big betting events in fight history.

Counting the money taken in yesterday, the advance sale was, roughly, $700,000, and Promoter Jacobs continued to sing of a million-dollar gate. Ten thousand general admission tickets will be thrown on sale at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening at $3.50 a head.

Romani Blames Air for His Defeat

New York, June 20 (AP)—It is an odd commentary on the state of mind of the modern track that most of the 20,000 who attended the Princeton invitation meet last Saturday went away disappointed although they had seen Glenn Cunningham whip Archie San Romani in one of the five fastest miles man ever has run.

Cunningham's time of 4:07.2 has been bettered only twice outdoors. Wayne Rideout beat Cunningham in world-record time of 3:00.3 in the three-quarter mile run.

All the advance tub-thumping had been based on a virtual assumption that the winner would lower English Sydney Wooderson's mile record of 4:06.6.

San Romani's only explanation for the absence of a record was that he found it difficult to breathe, ascribing this to a lack of sufficient oxygen in the air.

If it hadn't been for their collision 30 yards from home, Cunningham certainly would not have won by any such margin as six yards.

Lucas Swims From Here to Esopus

Casimir Lucas, local swimmer, splashed his way from Kingston Point to Esopus Island, Sunday, in two hours and 20 minutes. Next Sunday he'll swim from Glasco to the Point, and the week following will dive off the pier at Saugerties and head to Kingston.

Mrs. Stark the Champ

New York, June 20 (AP)—Mrs. Richard Stark of New York, the former Carolyn Babcock of Los Angeles, defeated another ex-Californian, Mrs. Carolyn S. Hirsch of Scarsdale, N. Y., yesterday to win the New York state women's tennis championship. The scores were 6-4, 7-5.

Sandwich, Eng., June 20 (AP)—America's bid for Henry Cotton's british open golf championship was strengthened today with the entries of Gene Sarazen and Lawson Little. Among other Americans entered was Vic Ghezzi, New Jersey professional.

BASEBALL'S GREATEST BACK TO BASEBALL

Kingston Loses Its American League Franchise to Troy

VanderMeer Holds the Bees To Four Hits, Makes a Record

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The old guy and the young one are rivals for the attention of baseball's followers today.

The old guy, of course, is Babe Ruth, back in harness again as coach of the Brooklyn Dodgers. He took the job Saturday at $15,000 for the rest of the season, appeared on the baselines yesterday and immediately regained his old spot as the main attraction on the ball field.

The young fellow is Cincinnati's remarkable Johnny Vander Meer, who couldn't make it three no-hitters in a row but came close enough to give the Boston Bees a good scare when he let them down with four blows to win, 14-1. The victory put the Reds in second place.

It was the Babe some 28,000 Brooklyn fans were out to see. But they also saw a couple of good ball games as Glenn Presnell's flinging and a slugging spurt that must have made the old Yankee clouter feel right at home gave the Dodgers a 6-2 opening triumph over the Chicago Cubs. Clay Bryant stopped the hitting, however, giving only one blow up to the ninth, and the Cubs won the nightcap.

Vander Meer, who pitched two consecutive hitless games, finally was touched in the fourth inning yesterday when Debs Garms singled. He made a new National League record of 21 2-3 consecutive no-hit innings.

Boston lost a chance to win the second game was rained out in the last half of the fifth.

Pittsburgh's Pirates put on a terrific clouting spree to wallop the Phillies, 14-4 and 16-3.

The New York Giants took a double beating, their second of the season from St. Louis and had their lead cut to three games. A 12th-inning single by Joe Stripp carried the Cards to an 8-7 opening victory and they won the nightcap, 4-2.

In the American League, the Boston Red Sox moved into second ahead of the slipping New York Yankees by splitting a twin bill at Chicago while the Yanks lost one game and tied another at St. Louis. After Gee Walker's homer had given the White Sox a 3-2 victory, Jimmy Foxx and Jim Bagby paced the Red Hose to a 6-1 triumph. The Yanks had 22 men left on base as they went down to the Browns, 10-9, then played a 7-7 eight-inning tie, halted by darkness.

The league-leading Cleveland Indians celebrated Connie Mack Day by trimming Connie's Athletics, 5-4, in one big inning. Washington's six-run first-inning beat Detroit, 10-6, and returned the Senators to fourth place.

Habers Shut Out Rondouts by 11-0

Jack Haber's Cat and the Fiddle baseball team shellacked the North Rondout A. C. outfit 11-0 at Hasbrouck Park Sunday afternoon.

Behind the two hit hurling of Ben Toffel the Habermen displayed their best form of the year, pounding out 13 hits, and played errorless ball all the way.

George "Curley-top Schirick led the winners' hitting attack with three singles, with Jack Struble pounding out a double and single. Toffel poked out a pair of singles, while Al Buchanan and Barnes each slammed out a triple.

Kalamazoos Beat Glasco Softies 10-3

Joe Scholar's Kalamazoo softballers pounded out a 10-3 victory over Glasco at Block Park yesterday morning.

Ben Toffel worked on the mound for the winners up to the eighth inning, allowing but three hits, being replaced by Jese Shultis who finished the game.

The Stovemen clubbed out thirteen hits to their opponents' five to win out in easy fashion. Glasco scored twice in the third inning but the winners came back with three runs in their half of the inning. In the fifth frame Kalamazoo tallied once and grabbed off six more during the last two innings.

Closi A. C. Meets Defeat in Phoenicia Ball Game by 9-1

The Phoenicia baseball team spanked the Closi A. C. of the Kingston City Baseball League in the Sunday afternoon feature at the mountain town diamond by the score of 9-1.

Anticipating a win, after their big victory over the Huron Indians last week, the Closis were given a terrible set-back when Schoolboy Bush held them to three hits and his mates annexed nine runs on 10 hits collected off the deliveries of Leo Komosa.

The fourth inning was disastrous for Komosa. He was shelled from the mound by Morrison's double and hits by Fairbain, Harlin and McGrath. After the dust had settled, Phoenicia was five runs to the good.

Earl Sleight took up the mound duties for the Closi band in the fifth and hurled effectively, striking out seven men. However Phoenicia collected two more runs off the red thatched finger to boost its total to nine.

A snappy double play by the Phoenicia infield nipped what might have turned into a rally for the Closis in the fifth. Brooks walked and E. Ashdown slapped a hard grounder between second and third. Sanford speared it and tossed to Coley who shot the pill to Morrison for the double killing.

The largest crowd of the season witnessed the game, filling the new grandstand that was opened for the first time.

Frank "Pop" Morgenweck, the professional basketball promoter, who was honored at a dinner last spring for bringing the major sport to Kingston, moved his franchise from here to Troy at a recent meeting of the American League.

The move consummated plans the Old Maestro formulated last season when he put his Kingston Colonials upstate in exhibition games, with Corky Stanton running the club as his All Stars.

At the same time, Morgie cried for help in Kingston, saying he had a losing proposition, and a combination of local business and professional men dashed to the rescue. At the end of the season, they reported a loss on promotion of the Kingston Club.

Morgenweck, according to the agreements in the transfer of the franchise, will take his whole Colonial team to Troy—Phil Rabiu, the leading scorer of the American League; Moe Dubilier, Corky Stanton, Max Posnack, Davie Bass, who managed the local quintet after Morgie dropped the reins; Carlie Husta and Tiny Hearn.

Attorney N. LeVan Haver, one of the local men interested in helping Morgenweck last season, told a Freeman sports writer last week that the Kingston group and the Old Maestro could not agree on a proposition to promote American League ball next fall.

With Kingston out, the league lineup will be Troy, Kate Smith's Celtics, Philadelphia Hebrews, Jersey Reds, New York Jewels, Brooklyn Visitations, New York Whirlwinds and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., a new entry.

Whether Kingston will be without big league basketball remains to be seen. In the meantime, Sid Lutzin, director of recreation, said today that the city league for development of local talent will continue at the auditorium.

Schonger Burned When Midget Auto Bursts Into Flame

George Schonger, who was tuning up his midget auto on Thursday evening in preparation for the Woodstock Legion Speedway events on Sunday, July 3, was badly burned on both legs when the car burst into flames.

He was returned to his home in Kerhonkson on Saturday evening from the Kingston Hospital. He is improving rapidly. His right leg was the more seriously burned, the flames having reached up as far as his hip.

George had taken the car from the Vandemark garage, near Accord, and was some distance from the garage when the flames burst out. He drove the car back to the garage, with the flames shooting up into the cockpit, and was with difficulty pulled from the blazing car, has feet having broken through the thin partition so that it took the efforts of two men to get him free.

He was treated by Dr. R. G. Holloway at Kerhonkson and was then taken to the Kingston Hospital by his brother, Donald. Misfortune still pursued him on the trip to Kingston, when a horse from the Clyde Marshall farm ran in front of the Schonger car and was knocked down. The horse was so badly injured that it was found necessary to shoot the animal.

Mrs. Ashton Hart was named by the nominating committee of the local American Legion Auxiliary for president at a meeting of the group Friday evening.

Other officers named for later election were: Mrs. Harry Kirchner, Mrs. Christopher Roche, vice-presidents; Mrs. Ernest Jansen, secretary; Mrs. Alfred Messinger, treasurer and Mrs. Conrad J. Heiselman, Mrs. Edward Leudtke and Mrs. William McNamee, members of the executive committee.

Other nominations may be offered from the floor when the officers are elected in September.

Mrs. Ashton Hart, Mrs. Raymond H. Woodard and Mrs. Ida N. Ashby were named delegates to the 18th annual convention of the state Legion Auxillary at Endicott, August 11, 12 and 13. Delegates and alternates will be nominated for the national conclave to be held in Los Angeles in September.

The Kingston unit voted to send a contribution amounting to two-weeks board, to the Child Health Camp Fund. A group of 300 children will be at the camp this season.

Commander Harry Kirchner of the Legion paid tribute to the auxiliary group and to its president, Mrs. Roche, at the close of the meeting.

CCC Youth Drowns Sunday Evening

John A. Hutter, 17, whose parents reside near East Kingston, was drowned Sunday evening while bathing with three other youths in a pool that had formed in an ore pit of the old Weed mines in the town of Ancram, Columbia county. Word of the drowning of the youth was sent over the teletype to police headquarters and the family notified.

The youth was a member of the CCC Camp at Boston Corners and about 7 o'clock Sunday evening had left camp with three other youths, to bathe. None of the youths was able to swim.

The body of the youth was recovered after other boys from the CCC camp had dived for it for an hour and a quarter. As soon as the body was brought to shore efforts were made to revive Hutter, and an inhalator was used for four hours before the youth was finally pronounced dead.

Coroner Potts, of Columbia county rendered a verdict of accidental death.

He is survived by his parents, three sisters and a brother.

Funeral arrangements are not complete.

City Child's Body Recovered Today

The body of five-year-old Martin Noble, of New York city, was recovered from a pond at Woodridge after state police and volunteers had searched the woods all night for a trace of the child's whereabouts, the Associated Press reports.

Martin arrived in Woodridge yesterday with his mother for a summer vacation and strayed away from her early last evening, Sheriff Harry Borden said. Bloodhounds led searchers to the banks of the pond, where the body was found after several hours of grappling.

U. S. WILL UNSEAL CAVE LONG CLOSED

Open Sequoia Wonder to the Public.

Sequoia National Park, Calif.—Development of Crystal cave, one of the world's largest and most beautiful caverns, will begin this summer under supervision of national park service officials.

The natural wonder in Sequoia National park has been kept closed since its discovery 20 years ago because funds were not available to provide adequate approaching roads and trails inside the caves. Funds were included in the recent Interior department supply bill, however, and the public soon will be able to see the beautiful formations and caverns.

The caves include two long tunnels and eight circular rooms ranging from 40 to more than 100 feet in width and from 20 to 60 feet in height. The tunnels are from 10 to 20 feet wide, and extend for 2,500 and 1,500 feet, respectively. They have a broken ascent of about 100 feet from end to end and a zigzag course.

Authorities who have visited the cave and are most familiar with other subterranean caves of the world have declared Crystal cave surpasses all others in beauty and variety of decoration.

All parts of the cave are covered with stalactites and stalagmites of varied size, form and color.

Warned by the destruction of careless tourists, the national park service has kept Crystal cave closed, pending appropriation of funds for its development.

Clough's cave, a nearby cavern with delicately colored stalactites and stalagmites, virtually was ruined by visitors, who broke the formations, darkened the interior with fires and marked up the walls.

Crystal cave was discovered April 28, 1918, by A. L. Medley and C. M. Webster, employees of Sequoia National park at that time. The cave was named officially by United States Commissioner Walter Fry, then the park superintendent, April 30, 1918.

U. S. Government Assists West in War on Rodents

Santa Fe, N. M.—It's no easy thing to be a rat in New Mexico even if you have the inclination. Ranchers have become tired of planting and cultivating crops only to find their efforts are being eaten by Mr. and Mrs. Kangaroo Rat.

A citizen figured out that as long as the government was spending money, New Mexico might as well ask for funds for rat control.

Director F. G. Carpenter, chief of the division of grazing, Department of Interior, sent a crew of federal "rat controllers" to get the situation in hand.

The experts estimate that eighty kangaroo rats will consume as much forage as a 750-pound cow or three sheep.

Elimination of the rodents is accomplished with two servings of oats. One straight helping and another garnished with strychnine.

Over 130,000 acres of land have been cleared of rodent pests by this method throughout the western states.

Whims of Map Makers Confusing to Anglers

Butte, Mont.—Fishermen planning a rendezvous in Montana had better find out more than the name of that creek where fishing is so good or they may be greatly disappointed.

For instance, an angler might go to any one of five Beaver creeks, four Trout creeks or to two each of Three Mile and Six Mile creeks.

There also are three Willow creeks, two Dog Creeks, two Antelope creeks, two Cottonwood creeks, two Falls creeks, two McClellan creeks, two Spring creeks, two Thompson creeks, two Butte creeks and two Jackson creeks.

Map makers blame pioneers' whims for the duplication.

College to Offer Course in Problems of Consumer

Oberlin, Ohio.—Students in economics at Oberlin college next semester will be offered a course in the marketing of goods from the consumers' point of view.

"The study of the consumers' viewpoint will supply a constructive analysis of certain widely-recognized weaknesses in the present system of commodity distribution," said Prof. Harvey A. Wooster, head of the department of economics, in announcing the course.

Diet Alters Color of Hair in Experiments

Wooster, Ohio.—Diet may control the color of the human hair to some extent, at least, a nutrition expert told delegates to the Ohio Academy of Science session.

Dr. Charles Hunt, associate in nutrition at the state agricultural experiment station here, said that omission of vitamin B-6 in feeding of rats caused gray hair. Feeding it in liberal quantities, he said, restored the hair to its former color.

Reports Painless Birth.

Los Angeles, June 20 (AP).—Painless childbirth, under her husband's hypnotic spell, was reported today by Mrs. Ethel Pardie Gaynor, 45, mother of six children. Her latest, an eight-pound daughter, was born yesterday. Two attending physicians certified she apparently suffered no pain, although no anaesthetic was used.
